JACK M'FADDEN PROVES A HERO

Jack McFadden known to the sports as a prize fighter, to the County dads as a fireman, must now be known to the general public as a hero. For yesterday Jack risked his life to save a little boy from death.

It happened in front of the Boretania Fire Station yesterday afternoon about 20 minutes after 5 o'clock. Jack was lounging in front of the station house at the corner of Boretania and Fort streets when suddenly a horse which a little crippled boy was driving became frightened at a passing car and started to run away. He headed straight for a telephone pole which if it had been reached would have undoubtedly wrecked the carriage, when Jack McFadden without a moment's hesitation sprang at the horse's head and succeeded in stopping the frightened animal after being dragged several feet. Had the animal gone a few feet further Jack would probably have been crushed against the pole and had his life crushed out in the attempt to save another's life. Fortunately the horse was stopped and every one concerned escaped without injury.

Jack is very modest about the whole affair maintaining that it was nothing. His friends declare however that he should be given a Carnegie medal and steps may be taken to get him one.

The little crippled boy drove away without giving his name.

There has been no further developments in the investigation as to the cause of the fire last evening which destroyed the home of Jack Mansfield.

ONLY ONE MORE TRIP TO THE DAM

DAM EXPERT KELLOGG ONLY EXPECTS TO MAKE ONE MORE TRIP TO THE NUUANU DAM.

With the exception of the examination of the pit that was sunk into the "mush" pile at the Nuuanu dam, the expert has completed his examination of the work. The pit will probably be deep enough for him to get an idea of the material before tomorrow noon and at that time he expects to make his final trip to the dam.

Yesterday all of the other points about the dam were examined by Mr. Kellogg. The water was at last pumped out of the bottom of the dam so that the expert could see how the concrete set on the rock. He was enabled to get a very good idea of the situation as the place was entirely free of water and the mud was swept away. Contrary to the prediction of ex-inspector Patterson the expert did not find a large stream of water issuing from the spot which was plugged by concrete.

In the examination of the material upon which the valve tower was placed the expert found the soil not very solid but not as bad as was expected. However the soil was not as solid as it might have been, but it was not worse than it was admitted to be by the engineers in charge.

The final report of Mr. Kellogg will be sent to the Governor from the coast. It will be written on the trip up and then after land is reached it will be typewritten and sent back. Mr. Kellogg is already at work upon his own which must be put in shape before the report is drafted.

Mr. Kellogg expects to leave for the coast on board of the S. S. Sonoma.

SAKE DECISION GIVEN PROMPTLY

BROKER JOHNSTON WROTE TO A FRIEND TELLING OF ACTION OF U. S. JUDGE MORROW.

According to a letter received by Chief Examiner Rayner Sharp of the local Customs Service, from H. J. Johnston the custom broker, the sake case was settled in very summary fashion in San Francisco recently. Mr. Levett and his associate argued the case for the government, taking about a day. Johnston's side followed. It was supposed after the importers had closed their side of the case that the government attorneys would close the argument but to the surprise of everybody they were not permitted to do so.

Judge Morrow called Levett before the bar and told him that it was unnecessary for the government to argue any further as it was clear to the mind of the court that sake was neither beer nor wine—a decision was accordingly given against the government.

WHERE IS THE FISH INSPECTOR?

EDITOR STAR: The Board of Health should at once look into the matter of fish inspection. Conditions at the fish market have become abominable. Within the past few weeks, I have had several experiences which made me think at the time that there must be something lax in the inspection of fish. But I did not at the time give it particular attention.

Last Saturday, however, I had an experience which was not to be overlooked. Going to the market, I was offered fish which were so obviously decayed, and wholly unfit for food, that I bought one just to determine beyond all question whether such fish were actually sold. They are. The market man sold me this one. I inquired at once for the fish inspector, Rathburn. He was not to be found anywhere about the market. It was said he had not been there for several hours, and I was told he was attending a political meeting. At any rate, he was not anywhere around the market. This was between two and three o'clock in the afternoon of last Saturday, July 14. I showed the fish I had bought to a number of my friends and acquaintances. It was palpably rotten. The smell of rotten fish was so strong as to attract attention when the wrapped up fish was being carried. It felt to pieces in the hand when examined.

I was so amazed that I could scarcely credit that such things could be. At my request, a friend of mine went to the market the same afternoon and he too was offered fish of the same kind—spoiled. As I had, and for the same purpose he bought some. He showed it to friends and acquaintances of his. The fish was very bad. He too, was unable to find the fish inspector.

Since this incident, I have heard of others who have had similar experience. I am ready to substantiate all that I have here said to the Board of Health or its President, if they desire to investigate the matter. I think the matter demands an investigation.

WILL BUCK THE STANDARD OIL

A BIG SHIPMENT OF REFINED OIL ARRIVED HERE ON THE S. S. CALIFORNIAN RECENTLY.

For the first time in the history of these islands the Standard Oil Company is to have a local rival. By the S. S. Californian which arrived here recently from San Francisco, there came a shipment of 4,000 cases of kerosene to H. Hackfeld and Company. The shipment was from the refinery of the Union Oil Company of California. The particular brand of oil is the "Aurora." It is the first large shipment of any refined oil other than Standard Oil make, that has come to the islands.
